Sector Exposure

Options

Some portfolios include an option over-write strategy. Four option positions expired worthless in February generating profit from the captured option premium. Two option positions were called early and one option position was rolled forward.

Outlook

We believe equities are benefitting from both a turn in the profit cycle as well as the anticipation for pro-business initiatives in the U.S. such as easing government regulation, lower corporate tax rates and foreign cash repatriation.

We anticipate a more volatile period ahead as the timing of when the initiatives being proposed turn into reality, and in what magnitude, may test less patient investors.

Our focus remains on owning quality stocks with compelling capital appreciation and dividend growth potential. Our objective is to deliver investment returns above the market with lower volatility.
